Rules: A. General: These rules aim to develop footbiking as a modern sport and fair, safe racing without undue restrictions.

1. Competitors ride a scooter that is powered by pedaling or pushed/moved. When pedaling, one foot pushes straight back on the ground, as when running, while the other foot rests on the scooter. A skating-like kick is not allowed.
2. The construction of the footbike is free, but it must not have motor, mechanical gear or sail, nor any sharp or protruding parts that endanger other competitors.
3. Foot wheel must be fitted with a working brake. (2 brakes is strongly recommended)
4. Before the starting signal, both the competitor and the scooter stay completely behind the starting line.
5. The front tire of the scooter that crosses the finish line determines the finish order. Removed pedal bike parts will not be considered legitimate. The competitor should be in contact with his/her scooter when crossing the finish line.
6. Race distances can only be determined and approved by the IKSA. Women's races preferably have the same distance as the men's races or are (max.) 10% shorter. It is not allowed to use a race distance shorter than 10% of the men's distance for the IKSA Eurocup women's race.
7. In long-distance races, all riders are allowed to finish once the category winner has finished. This results in a different lap total among the ranked drivers. The women's footbikers finish when the winner in the women's category finishes.

Liability: With their registration, the participants accept the organizer's exclusion of liability for damage of any kind. The organiser, the organizing clubs and their officials assume no liability for personal injury or damage to property, neither by participants nor by spectators before, during and after the event.

Neither the organizer nor the organizing club assume any liability for the condition of the running surface and the resulting dangers for the runners and officials.
